the greatest total for this period in

DEATH OF MRS. JULIA A. ADAMS

Well Nigh a Centenarian—Passing of a True Daughter of New London County.

In the death of Mrs. Julia A. Adams at Gales Ferry at the advanced age of 86 years, which occurred Saturday afternoon at 2 o'clock, it is to be noted the severing of another link which connects the modern life of New London county, and of course of the state, with chapters of the interesting story of this country's past—with the original settlement of this section by the white men, with the time of the Indians and the Revolution, the subsequent extensive trade of our local countryside to the West Indies, with the period when New England's wharves were supreme in this section, and with all that pertained to last-century life hereabouts.

All of these features of the past Mrs.
Adams was to a marked degree familiar with. Her father, the late Guy C.
Stoddard, state senator, a soldier of the war of 1812, during her childhood days had to do with the settlement of Indian claims, the Stoddards from whom she was a direct descendant having been among the first settlers in this section. In 1855 the late Stoddard took the John Gager tract of land in Groton, covering the present site of Gales Ferry. Since that time the Stod-dards have always made their presence felt in that section, although very few of the descendants are now left on the east shore of the Thames river.
They were active patriots in the Revolutionary war.

During the West India trade in the early part of the nineteenth century the whaling industry was developed at New London, Mystic, Stonington and New Bedford. Some of her family were interested in the West India traffic.
She married James Adams, late of Gales Ferry, who was one of the oldest in term of service of New London whalers.

Of sturdy Puritanical stock, she was one of the type of women who made the settlement of our country possible —a woman of opinions and intelligence, who might be found relieving distress amongst the most dangerous of neighborhood illnesses, making great clothes for the men who sailed at sea, or picking lint for the wounds of New London county's soldier boys in the terrible Civil war.

Active in church and social affairs, Mrs. Adams was always a public spirited woman, and remained so until the last.

The extension of the Norwich & Worcester railroad through the town changed the characteristics of life in Ledyard and to a great degree, but Mrs. Adams adapted herself to them as far as her age would allow, and in these later days she was ever in sympathy with the idea of progress.
Consequently she was a favorite with the young people of the town, many of whom have visited her during her long illness.

Two children, Mrs. William H. Moltrof (at whose home she died), and David S. Adams of the New Haven Palladium, were with her at the time of her death. She leaves relatives in very many of the cities and towns of the state, and, in fact, throughout the country.

STATE PRESIDENT OF C. E. UNION.

J. H. Mansfield of New Haven Addressed Members of Local Societies at Central Baptist Church.

The evening service Sunday at the Central Baptist church was especially for the young people, having J. H.
Mansfield of New Haven, state president of the Christian Endeavor society, as the speaker, and the Christian Endeavors of the Norwich union with the other local young people's organizations were specially invited. There was a good attendance.

Rev. George H. Ewing of the First Congregational church, president of the Norwich city union, presided and read the scripture at the opening of the service. Prayer was offered by Rev. Joseph E. Cobb of the Universalist church. For the offertory, the soprano solo Calvary was expressively rendered by Miss Harriet C. Frieble.

After Rev. Mr. Ewing had extended the welcome to all present, the society's organizations present, he presented Rev. P. C. Wright, the pastor of the church, formerly one of the state vice presidents of the C. E. U.
Mr. Wright spoke briefly of his hearty sympathy with all young people's work and then gave way to President Mansfield, who was introduced by Rev. Mr.
Ewing.

HAD ROUGH TRIP
GOING TO HALIFAX.

Potter Bros. Known as the Harddigs Playing in Nova Scotia Vaudeville House.

Badly iced up, her rails, decks and riggings showing the effects of the battle with the ice, the Pottery Bros. line steamer Lady Sybil, Capt. M. R.
Wrayton, twenty-two hours late, arrived at Halifax, N. S., from Boston Monday night. The steamer sustained no damage, but all on board were glad when she made port, as the trip was a very stormy one.

14 hours in the bay of Fundy the Pottery Bros. for it was impossible to proceed against the mighty seas that prevailed. With the wind blowing 60 miles an hour the Sybil rode the waves, the passengers were constantly washed by mountainous seas.

On Sunday morning about three o'clock in the middle of the bay of Fundy, the Pottery Bros. line steamer was tossed about in the heavy seas, made practically no headway and Captain Wrayton decided to lay to.
From that time until four o'clock on Sunday afternoon she lay to, then the weather moderating somewhat she began to make headway. It was then hoped that Halifax would be reached before Monday morning. But it was not to be. Off Cape Sable the Sybil ran into a terrific hurricane, which greatly retarded her progress.

On the passenger list were W. L. and J. A. Potter of Norwich, and in writing home the former says it is needless to say we will return by rail.
The Pottery Bros. line steamer, which they have secured engagements in other cities for two weeks longer than their original bookings.

FUNERALS.

George C. Ripley.
Funeral services for George C. Ripley, who died in Minneapolis Tuesday afternoon, were held at the Unitarian Congregational church, says the Minneapolis Journal. President Northrup of the university of Minnesota, conducted the services. Representatives from the Morgan G. A. R. post, of which Colonel Ripley was a member, were present, and also a large number of members of the Yale Alumni association of the northwest, of which association Colonel Ripley had been at one time president.

The remains of the deceased have been placed in the vault at the funeral vault at Lakewood cemetery, and the final interment will be at Colonel Ripley's old home, Norwich, Conn.

The father of the deceased was water, Charles S. Jolley, Anson S.
Brooks, Rev. John E. Bushnell, Prof.
Frederick S. Jones, Dr. Burnside Foster, Burt P. Loun and Wm. P. Booth.
Colonel Ripley was born in Norwich, Conn., August 24, 1839. After the close of his military service, and after receiving his degree from Yale university, he took up the study of law in the office of Jeremiah Halsey, one of the most prominent attorneys of his day in the state of Connecticut, and was admitted to the bar.
For many years city attorney of Norwich, Conn., and served two terms in the Connecticut legislature.

In 1858 he removed to Minneapolis, Minn., where he was at the head of the firm of Ripley, Brennan & Loun. He was the leading attorney in the celebrated case of King vs.
Remington, and largely through his efforts his client, Colonel King, recovered property amounting to about $1,500,000.

Several years ago Colonel Ripley had a severe attack of pernicious anemia, and while seemingly in the way year to have recovered somewhat, yet this was the immediate cause of his death.

Philip Gallivan.
The funeral of Philip Gallivan was held from the rooms of St. Paul's on Saturday afternoon, where a service was conducted by Rev. W. A. Glendon of St. Patrick's church. Burial was in St. Mary's cemetery.

CASE SETTLED SATURDAY.

Appeal to Supreme Court Was at Same Time Withdrawn.

The case of Max Patschenkew vs. the Hopson & Chapin company was settled Saturday morning by the defendants for the amount of $5,000 awarded to the plaintiff by the superior court on Dec. 17, 1908. The Hopson & Chapin company or the Travelers Insurance company of Hartford, which is the real defendant, took an appeal at that time and this was withdrawn on Saturday.

Lucky or Unlucky—13.
A party of local fishermen out after pickering on Saturday was using a dipper to skim the small pieces of ice from the holes when the eagle eye of a veteran discovered that it had the marking "13" on the handle. Hoodoo!

The first thought of the follower of Izak Walton. He communicated the fact to the captain in the party and at the same time expressed surprise that with that handicap it was a wonder they found ice on the pond.
The elder, who has an enviable reputation for his cooking ability, then fastened to shore and began to beat the dipper into an unserviceable bunch of tin. As soon as he had completed the obliteration and returned to the ice, up went the first tilt and thereafter eleven of the prettiest pickering were drawn forth.

Vested Choir at Sheltering Arms.
On Sunday afternoon at the Sheltering Arms Rev. Nelson Fox Carey and the vestal choir of Christ Episcopal church conducted a pleasing service.
Rev. Mr. Carey spoke inspiringly and the harmonious singing of the choir proved delightful.

Harris Was High.
Rolling a single of 124, Julian Harris was again the honor man for Saturday at the Billiards club. He high three times for the week, fell to 211 on a total of 327, which beat out a bunch of 321 made early in the week by Casey.

some ingredients, Father John's der Brigadier General J. J. Lawless of New London, and were greatly disappointed when he failed to appear.
